

Teaching

Many teachers call their work a labor of love. Teaching is a practice option that involves instructing medical students, residents, fellows, students in other health profession. Activities may include teaching basic science courses to medical students, teaching clinical skills, supervising medical student research projects and providing continuing medical education courses for practicing physicians.